

Are you planning to obtain certification from the NCQA for the Patient Centered Medical Home?

(2012 August)

- 1) Yes, as a group.
- 2) No, doesn't see a benefit at this late stage of my career.
- 3) Absolutely no advantage to doing this.
- 4) Yes by the end of 2013 or early 2014.
- 5) No, I don't even know what NCQA stands for.
- 6) No, because Oklahoma limits APRN practice by requiring a supervising physician for prescriptive authority, Nurse Led Medical homes in Oklahoma are not eligible to obtain NCQA certification. States that do not limit APRN practice - those NP's are able to apply. It is my wish that rather than hinder quality health care in our state, our physician groups would rather lead the way for initiatives to erase restrictions to Nursing practice that are no longer necessary, thus improving the level of care delivery services in our state.
